Mohammed Hussein Alshaali, the man behind Gulf Craft's visionary strategy.

Renowned name in the marine industry, with a strong passion for sailing inherited from the father. Chairman and founder of Gulf Craft, he is the man who in 1982 launched a humble UAE-based yacht and boat manufacturer, in a period of time when yachting was a field with less good prospects compared to other sectors. Despite this uncertain scenario, Alshaali decided to face the challenge and started the business in the marine industry.

Gulf Craft's leading position and global reputation are built around three key-pillars, the same that built the shipyard's DNA since the very beginning three decades ago: love for the sea, strong passion for building and the firm belief that the success of the UAE should be based around productive industry.

Today Gulf Craft, among the world's top shipbuilders, is a globally respected shipyard with a presence in more than 40 countries worldwide. Thanks to the continued confidence and loyalty of customers and business partners, Gulf Craft holds a strong legacy and solid track record of redefining sea travel for the world's boat enthusiasts.

Gulf Craft continues to invest heavily in research and development as part of its unrelenting efforts to inspire people to explore the wondrous possibilities of on-water living. And this year at the Dubai International Boat Show, with the largest fleet ever showcased by the shipyard in a single event, Gulf Craft impressed crowds with a display of 14 bespoke yachts and boats, that elegantly surrounded the global debut of the youngest tri-deck Majesty 110, the opulent Majesty 90 and the oceangoing Nomad 55.

Mohammed Hussein Al Shaali, Chairman of Gulf Craft, said: "The Dubai International Boat Show resonates deeply with Gulf Craft, a company born in the UAE, and we look forward to the event every year to reaffirm our level of commitment to our customers, and to devoted seafarers in the region. The show serves as not only a key international platform for showcasing our latest craft, but also as an opportunity to represent the UAE as a global player in the leisure marine industry."

Whether you are at the aft deck swim platform or at the upper deck's Jacuzzi basking in the sun or at the sun deck enjoying unparalleled views while listening to your favorite music from the state-of-the-art Bang and Olufsen speakers, Gulf Craft has emerged not just as a superyacht builder, but also as a creator of timeless masterpieces.
